Fresh off their win on the French crowdfunding site Ulule, where their 8000 euros mark was met with over 70 000 euros worth of pledges from 2000 + participants, the young editing company Jocus launches Henchmania, the English language version of their boardgames for the international market!!

Since July 26th, the whole Henchmania team will be waiting online with an English version and never-before-seen brand new features...

Henchmania, the Henchmen's world conquest

The boardgames start-up Jocus chooses Kikstarter and its 8 000 000 users worldwide as partners for their worldwide launch. The goal of this campaign is to distribute an English version to a multitude of countries around the globe!

"Our mission remains the same: to introduce new and ever wider audiences to the kooky and highly entertaining realm that is Henchmania"

The new campaign will be full of surprises with new uglier-than-ever Henchmen, new cards bestowing players with more absolute powers and a lot more to be revealed...

“We have of course come up with an offer allowing our loyal Ulule sponsors access to the new goodies!”

For the newbies to Henchmania!

A cross between Game Of Thrones and Monty Python: become a medieval Lord and puppet master, use your monstrous and loyal henchmen who will do ANYTHING to help their master satiate his thirst for prestige!

The high caliber aesthetic visuals and the thought put into its game design make the game both a fun and strategic experience. Your henchmen weren't endowed with brains or beauty but their devotion do make them endearing.

Each character is down by Laurent Nicolas then hand painted by Landry Munoz, making the final rendering quite unique.
